THE IMPROVED
DOUBLE RIBBED FURNACE
GRATES,
(Manufactured under the W. W. Tupper & Co., Patents, by W. C. Childs & Co., Pittsburgh,) ARE OFFERED TO
Oil Producers,
Manufacturers,
and Others.
Are offered at a Low Price
Are More Durable;
Are Warranted not to Warp;
Are Lighter and Stronger;
Are adapted to more kinds of fuel;
And will effect a Greater Saving of Fuel than any other Grate in use.
Producers
and
Manufacturers
Cannot afford to be without them!
These Grates have stood the test of seven years actual use, and are adopted by the most prominent manufacturers and navigation companies throughout the country.

Read the following letter from B. E. Moreland & Co:
TITUSVILLE, Pa., September 21, 1870.
A. R. WILLIAMS, Esq., Titusville, Pa.—Dear Sir: We take pleasure in adding our names to the long roll of testimonials already given in advocacy of the merits of the Improved Double-Ribbed Furnace Grates.
We have had them in constant use for a year, and during that time (although our furnaces represent more than five hundred feet of surface) we have not yet lost a single bar by burning out or warping.
Their advantages to us, in economizing fuel, ease of management and superior durability, warrant us in recommending them as fully up, if not superior, to the merits claimed for them. We would use no other. Truly yours,
B. E. MORELAND & CO.

The substitution of this Grate will generally enable the consumer to raise sufficient heat with nut coal, or even slack, when formerly the best lump was necessary; when, tan, bark, sawdust, etc., is burned it will be found on trial to be almost indispensible. No change in burners required in any furnace. All orders will receive prompt attention.

LOCAL NOTICES.

To Those Who Grant, but who do not understand why I can afford to sell all classes of goods in which I deal, at so much less than the same qualities are sold elsewhere, I would say, that I enjoy great and unusual facilities in the purchasing of my goods, and for the following reasons: I employ a gentleman of many years experience in the wholesale and importing business in New York, to act as my buyer, and who represents my house "all the year round" in the Eastern markets. Having been a jobber himself, he has an intimate acquaintance with all the leading importing houses, as well as with the manufacturers of American Goods, and is therefore enabled to make a majority of my purchases of first hands, saving to me the profit of the "middle-men" or jobbers, which all retailers are obliged to pay. Again, by being in the market constantly, he is not only enabled to take advantage of the opportunity to purchase at the great Auction sales, where Goods are frequently sold at a great reduction from their actual cost of manufacture, but also of the lots offered by Importing as well as Jobbing Houses when over-stocked, or of sales made by those who are compelled to sacrifice their Goods in order to raise money. Now it is evident by being thus situated I am enabled to sell and make a good living profit at less rates than if I went hastily to market, say, even ten times a year, and purchased my goods in the usual way. In short, buying is an institution of itself, and to do it well, a man must give his entire time and talents to it, the same as the successful lawyer or doctor does to his profession, or a skilled mechanic in his particular art.

As an instance proving the assertion made above, examine my dress goods, offered at 18c. per yard; these same goods are now held by importers in the regular way at 22 1 2c., while my buyer purchased them at a price that enables me to place them at retail upon my counters at the price quoted above. As another instance I am offering Lonsdale bleached cotton at 16c. per yard—refer to New York wholesale price lists, and you will find that the net cash jobbing price is the same as my retail price here in Titusville, 500 miles away.

I can go on through my entire stock and point out hosts of similar instances, but space forbids. "To see is to be convinced." WM. H. ANDREWS,

Letter from Gen. Sherman.

HIS ACKNOWLEDGMENTS TO THE SAN FRANCISCO SOCIETY OF PIONEERS—RECOLLECTIONS OF EARLY CALIFORNIA LIFE.

From the San Francisco Alta, Nov. 8.

The following letter from Gen. W. T. Sherman to the Society of California Pioneers, will be read with interest:

Headquarters Army of the United States,
Washington, D. C., Oct. 16, 1870.

Charles D. Carter, Esq., President of the California Pioneers:

Dear Carter: I reached home on Friday—this is Sunday—and I am writing my letters from my own house, to catch up with the accumulation during my long absence.

I wrote to you and to the Society a fuller expression of my sense of obligation for the handsome manner in which you welcomed me to San Francisco, and contributed to the pleasure of my visit there. I fear sometimes that I did not express to you how fully I felt your kindness, and cannot forbear at this moment from renewing to you, and to all the Pioneers, my attachment to them and the fond memories that cling around the early events of that almost poetic country. We talk of its luscious grapes, and pears, and peaches; of its perpetual round of strawberries and flowers; of a climate stripped of the rigors of Winter, or heats of Summer; of the contrast of its wooded mountains and barren plains; but to me that cordial, hearty friendship, which characterized the early pioneers, and which you and your associates have perpetuated, is the great charm of California.

I remember well when gold was discovered in Sutter's old saw-mill, and the tidings went forth by such sailing craft as ventured so far, that persons began to arrive from the Sandwich Islands, from Mexico, Peru, Chili, and last from the United States and Europe. No one inquired where they came, or why they came.

Yonder, on the Sierra Nevada, go and gather its gold freely, without tax, and they went, without question of hindrance, by such road-means as the country then afforded. In 1848-49 and 1850, came the stream of emigrant wagons from home from the States Who inquired if they came from New York, or Ohio, or Alabama, or Texas? Nobody. All were welcome. All were freemen. Some even brought slaves, but who talked of slavery in California? The word was never breathed west of the Rocky Mountains. My black boy Jim discharged me because I only got $76 a month from the Government as pay, when he could earn $300 a month, and I had to go into camp and cook my own rations at Sutter's old tan-yard, where the city of Sacramento now stands.

If all our countrymen had seen California in those early pioneer days, I think we should not have seen a civil war, have been compelled to walk rough-shod over half our country, and been compelled, for half a century, to stagger under a fearful national debt.

But this is all past, and now there are no reasons why all of our favored country may not become as California, each man standing on his own merits, his own achievements; the more accident of his birthplace being nothing in comparison with his choice of residence when a full man.

Excuse me for this diversion, but you can hardly realize the mental struggles through which we have passed, and I only wish to encourage the pioneers of California in their hearty, friendly, enthusiastic love of their kind, as an example to the many who will hereafter share your bounties.

I was intimately connected with many of the public events which brought California into our system of government, and I sometimes feel that I ought to bear witness of the transaction from a conquered Mexican province to a State in the Federal Union. If therefore, in after years you have an appropriate occasion, and I am still alive, if you will call for me, I will come again to renew the memory of these years, which have been so fruitful to our whole country.

After we parted on the wharf, we had a pleasant voyage up to Portland, Oregon, in the steamer Oriflamme, thence by good boats and rail to Umatilla, by stage to Boise City and Kelton, on the Union Pacific Railroad, whence by easy stages we come home by Salt Lake, Denver, Leavenworth and St. Louis.

When I recall our pioneer experience of a seven month's voyage around Cape Horn, or the long dusty road overland, or the shorter, but not less perilous voyage by Chagres and Panama, I feel under deep and heartfelt obligations to the men who conceived and executed the present Pacific Railroad. It is simply magnificent, and realizes fully our dreams of 1849-50. It may for a short time disturb some of the calculations of the merchants and bankers of San Francisco; but they are no common men and will soon turn it to their profit and advantage, and make San Francisco what it really is—the seaport of the Pacific. Even more than New York has become the City of the Atlantic.

Though I cannot expect to show in your monthly and annual meetings, I hope you will keep me advised, for I will feel a lifelong interest in the affairs of the Society of California Pioneers, and so far as in my power lies I will endeavor to contribute my mite.

I have, in my safe keeping, the beautiful gold badge and the flag of native silk.

Present me kindly to all the members at your next meeting, and believe me truly your friend,

W. T. Sherman, General.

Napoleon's Prophecy.

THE FULL TEXT—THE PREDICTION NOT YET ACCOMPLISHED.

Ere fifty years shall have passed, said the imperial political soothsayer, France will be Republican or Cossack. Then if my son is alive, he will be called to the throne amid the acclamations of the people. If he be no more, France will again become Republican, since no other hand would dare to grasp the sceptre that he could not uphold.

The Orleans branch, although acceptable, is too feeble. It partakes too much of the other Bourbons and will meet with the same fate should its members not prefer to live the life of simple citizens, no matter what changes may intervene. Once again France will be Republican, and the other countries will follow her example. Germans, Prussians, Poles, Italians, Danes, Swedes and Russians will unite with her in a crusade in favor of liberty. They will take up arms against their sovereigns, who will hasten to make concessions to them so as to retain a part of their old authority. They will call themselves constitutional kings with limited powers. Thus will the feudal system receive its death blow. Like fog in the midst of the ocean it will vanish at the first rays of the sun of liberty.

But things will not remain there; the wheels of revolution will not stop at that point; its impetuosity will multiply five-fold, and its rapidity will increase in like proportion. When a people has regained a part of their rights in victory, and, having tasted the sweets of liberty it grows the more enterprising in order to obtain the more. The State of Europe will for some years, perhaps, be in a state of continual agitation, like the soil at the moment which precedes an earthquake but at last the lava will burst forth and the explosion will terminate everything.

The bankruptcy of England will be the lava which is to shake the world and swallow up the kings and the aristocracies, but will cement the interests of the Democracy by its eruption. Believe me, Las Casas, in like manner as the vines that cover the foot of Ætna and of Vesuvius produce the most delicious vintages, so will the tree of liberty become fixed and not to be cast down when it shall have its roots planted in that revolutionary lava which will have overflowed all the monarchies. May it bloom and flourish for ages! These may seem strange sentiments for you to hear from my lips; however, they are really mine. I was born a Republican; but destiny and the opposition of Europe have made me an Emperor. I now await the future.

Jewel Robbery in Cleveland.

DARING BURGLARY OF A JEWELRY STORE—WATCHES AND OTHER VALUABLES TO THE AMOUNT OF TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS STOLEN.

From the Cleveland Herald, Nov. 14.

We record this morning one of the heaviest robberies by burglars ever perpetrated in this city. Between the hours of seven and ten o'clock Sunday night the jewelry store of N. E. Crittenden & Co., on Superior street, was entered by burglars, who succeeded in getting off with watches and articles of jewelry to the amount of from fifteen to twenty thousand dollars. The facts connected with the robbery, so far as known, are as follows:

A young man named Louis Webber sleeps in the store at night, At half-past six o'clock Sunday evening he passed through the store and found everything all right. He lighted one or two of the gas burners, which are always kept burning during the night, and then went out for the evening, leaving all the doors and windows secured in the usual manner. During the evening Mr. Allison, of the Merchants' Police passed the store two or three times and tried the door, as is the custom, to see that all was safe. He neither saw nor heard the slightest indication of the operations doubtless at that very time going on within. About half-past ten o'clock Mr. Webber returned to the store. Soon after entering he glanced behind one of the counters and saw a large number of empty watch and jewelry cases laying upon the floor. Fairly terrified at the sight he sprang to the front door and blew a whistle. Patrolman Stein and Wagner answered the signal and were soon at the spot. Inquiring the cause of the alarm, Weber told them, so trembling and excited that he could scarcely speak, that the store had been robbed. When Webber first entered, upon his return, the gas was turned down much lower than he had left it, so that but a very faint light was given, showing at once that somebody had called after he left. The gas was turned on and the extent of the robbery was apparent at a glance. One of the large show cases and part of another were entirely empty, and upon the floor, in promiscuous confusion, were a bushel or so of morocco, ivory and satin watch and jewelry cases, which had been despoiled of their contents. Information was at once given to the police department, and in a short time the Superintendent and the entire detective force were busily at work endeavoring to gain some clue to the perpetrators of the deed. Intelligence of the affair was also sent to the residences of the members of the firm. Mr. Crittenden is in the East, but Mr. L. W. Curtis and Mr. Ogden Crittenden lost no time in going to the store. As near as could be estimated the loss was as given above. Over fifty ladies' gold and silver watches, a quantity of bracelets and jewelry sets and about 150 set and seal rings were the principal articles taken. An examination of the premises showed that the bold cracksmen had effected an entrance into the store by a rear window. They first forced off a shutter and entered the watchmaker's shop, but a door leading from this into the store was securely fastened and they were unable to prosecute their explorations in that direction without making so much noise as to be in danger of discovery. They then returned to the outside and tried (successfully) a window leading directly into the store. Once inside, with the gas turned down, they were comparatively safe from detection. Creeping along behind the counters they had only to open the doors of the showcases and sweep the plunder into their satchels. They had just commenced upon one case, after having effectually cleaned out one, filled with valuable articles, when it is evident they were alarmed by something and fled, making good their escape and leaving scarcely a trace behind. An iron bar or "jimmy" was picked up just outside the window. All the diamonds and many of the most costly watches were in the vault.

A Sumner Organ on the Pending Troubles.

From the Boston Advertiser (Republican)—Senator Sumner's organ—Nov. 16.

The article on the reorganization of parties, copied from the Chicago Tribune, may be taken as a formal notice of intention to withdraw from the firm with its share of the capital. The firm, or what there is left of it, will continue to do business at the old stand a while longer. We imagine that a few of the gentlemen named in the notice, not to speak of the ambiguous "&c.," will consider further before going out, or, if they decide to go out, before taking stock in the new venture. Carl Schurz and Gratz Brown, to be sure, have been speculating in Missouri on their own account with such success that their is small chance of their coming back. David A. Wells also appears to be well provided for. Wendell Phillips is out on a voyage of discovery, and nobody knows at what port he may come in. But fancy Beecher and Garrison, Charles Sumner and Fred. Douglass, going over to Tammany some pleasant day between this time and the next Democratic National Convention, and after a conference with the chiefs of that wigwam, offering to join forces on condition that they should not be held "responsible for the past errors of the Democratic party on the slavery question!" Or imagine Lyman Trumbull, whom the disorganizers have had even greater hopes of carrying with them over to the Democracy in the next Congress, stopping on his way to Washington to leave the terms of an alliance with Mr. Tweed. Mr. Tweed, calling to mind Trumbull's speech at Chicago a few days ago, would probably say: "You have a good many absurd notions about keeping up the public credit and reforming the civil service which are entirely out of our line; but if you can stand the alliance we can."

The Chicago Tribune has a large and well merited influence, but it has very little comprehension of the strength of political attachments when they are once formed, of the dependence of a great system of beneficent legislation, which is still on trial, upon the continued republican ascendancy, or of the alternative that must be accepted in the event that its desertion and the desertion of its friends accomplished the defeat of that organization. * * * If the plan here indicated of uniting the free trade republican and democratic members of the next House were attempted, and they were strong enough to control the organization, the question would come to a direct issue before the country sooner than has been expected. But it will not be attempted; first, because there is not a shadow of evidence in the late elections or in the general discussions of the subject to indicate that such a combination on that issue would be sustained by the country, and the veteran free traders are too wise to allow the new converts in the heat of their young zeal to imperil everything by rushing in too soon; and second, because, with a large portion of the Democratic party, although adhering to free trade, it is dominated by a passionate and overruling purpose to degrade the national credit by violating the national credit, and to reverse some of the most solemn and binding decisions of the war. The evidences of this spirit among them are too evident and too recent to be concealed long enough to patch up a combination with republicans, if for nothing more than the control of the House of Representatives, however much they might desire to use their power by the first instrument which came to hand.

The receipts of the New Orleans custom house on the 3d instant were $103,000—the largest ever received in one day.

Saturday, Nov. 19, 1870.

THE Revenue Reform, which amounts to no more nor less than free trade, as long as a great national debt hangs over us, which can only be discharged by a revenue derived in part from a Protective Tariff, is so much like Democratic repudiation, that it is not surprising the Revenue Reformers and the Democrats are willing to coalesce.

THE legal-tender question, notwithstanding the comprehensive decision of the supreme court of the United States, occasionally makes its appearance in the state courts, and in almost every instance some overgrown corporation is one of the litigants. At the last term of the supreme court of Connecticut the case of Johnson vs. the Norwich and Worcester Railroad Company was determined, the court deciding that the mortgage bonds created prior to 1862 were payable in gold coin. This decision is attracting much attention in New England, where the savings banks hold an enormous amount of old mortgages made before 1862, and which are thus made payable in specie.

The Next House.

Thirty-two States out of the thirty-seven have now held elections for members of the Forty-second Congress, and the results are so far known that at least approximately correct calculations can be made with respect to the political complexion of the next House. Out of 243 members, or a full House, there have been chosen 222. In the following table will be found a statement of the strength of the two parties in the present House. We also present a tabular view of the next House, so far as it has been elected. It will be seen that the total number of members in the House last year was 233. None of the seven delegates from Georgia were in that House, and only two of the five to which Louisiana was entitled. In that House the nominal Republican majority was 101.

There are five States yet to elect their Congressional delegations. Georgia holds her elections on the 21st, 22d and 23d of December; California and Texas vote in February; New Hampshire on the second Tuesday of March; and Connecticut on the first Monday of April. Georgia elects 7 members, California 3, Texas 4. New Hampshire 3, and Connecticut 4, in all 21. Georgia will probably elect 3 Republicans and 4 Democrats; California 1 Republican and 2 Democrats; Texas 2 Republicans and 2 Democrats; Connecticut 3 Republicans and 1 Democrat; and New Hampshire 3, Republicans—in all, 12 Republicans and 9 Democrats. With these additions, the next House will stand, (provided the two Republican "Reformers" elected in Missouri act with the Republican party,) 145 Republicans to 98 Democrats, being a Republican majority of 47. There are several cases where seats will be contested by the Republican candidates. Should three of the latter be admitted to seats the Republicans will have a majority of 50 in the next House.

State News.

A new temperance organization called the "Sons of Jonadab" has been inaugurated at Harrisburg.

Edward G. Lee, Esq., of Frankfort, has been elected Grand Worthy Patriarch of the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance of Pennsylvania. There are one hundred and eighty-five divisions of this order in the State, and the report made on the occasion showed an increase in the membership during the year of four thousand six hundred and twenty-eight.

An Erie business has written to the superintendent of the census, complaining of the publication by the Erie Press of the industries of that city, to which the superintendent replies that after the returns are filed with the county clerks the department is powerless to prevent their being published. Probably this Erie business man, not contemplating the publication of his business affairs, made a low return, and thus cuts a ridiculous figure.

The annual election of officers of the Grand Chapter of Pennsylvania, A. Y. M., took place last week at Philadelphia, and resulted as follows: Most excellent Grand High Priest, Comb. Michael Nesbit; Most Excellent Grand King, Comb. Charles E. Meyer; Most Excellent Grand Scribe, Comb. John Wilson, jr.; Most Excellent Grand Treasurer, Comb. Peter Williamson; Most Excellent Grand Secretary, Comb. John Thompson. The installation of the officers elected will take place on St. John's day, December 27.

In the Dauphin county Court of Common Pleas, Judge Pearson lately decided that notice to a tenant by a landlord to quit on the first day of April, and which was served on the first day of January, was too late. The Judge said it should have been served on or before the 31st of December. The ground of this decision was, that it has been settled by the Supreme Court that "whenever an act of Assembly requires a thing to be done within a certain number of days or month's notice to be given, the one is to be included, and the other excluded."

New Castle Guardian says: The Enterprise Oil Company are now putting casing in their well on the Slipperyrock creek, near Eckhart's mill, Warren county. Experienced operators who have examined the indications, are of the opinion that the signs are in favor of a flowing well. The operations are being conducted under the superintendency of Mr. W. S. Crawford.

Thos. Carlyle writes two and a half columns of small type to the Times on the war. From Orleans.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

Advices from Orleans to last Monday, says the Prussians had retired to the northward, beyond Artenay. The French had constructed heavy earthworks in front of the railway junction, just outside of Orleans. Ten thousand men had been employed on the work. The French, under Gen. Paludin, were massed between Orleans and Artenay. The cavalry of the French was being wretchedly managed. A large number of boats were collected at Orleans to cross the army to the southern bank of the Loire, in case of defeat in the impending battle. The requisition made by the Prussians at Orleans amounted to two hundred thousand pounds sterling. Some skirmishing had been reported at the French outposts.

Violations of the Paris Treaty.

It is said the particular violations of the Paris treaty of 1856, of which Russia has complained of are as follows: The cruise of the Prince of Wales in the Black Sea in an English frigate; a similar trip by Lord Bulwer Lytton; appearance of an Austrian squdron at Varna, a Turkish city in the Black Sea, when the Emperor of Austria was there, and lastly the voyage of the Sultan in a Turkish frigate. The Russian envoy at Constantinople protested against this latter circumstance at the time, but ineffectually.

The New King.

MADRID, Nov. 18.

A committee consisting of fifteen members of the Constituent Cortes has been appointed to proceed to Florence to present the Spanish Crown to the Duke of Aosta. The election of Aosta is highly popular throughout the Provinces. No disorders followed his proclamation, though the Government had reason to believe that as the candidature was unpopular in certain quarters, there might be demonstrations of disapproval. The services of troops have not been necessary anywhere. In all the large cities cannon were fired in honor of the event.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

It is now ascertained that the Prussians in Paladieu's front have not retired to Arthenay. The Prussians now hold all the strongholds along the line of the June mountain. The siege of Souezay and Montmedy is imminent. Sorties from Mezeires have been repulsed by the First Prussian Infantry.

More Strategy.

A special to the World dated London, Nov. 18, says: A special telegram from Tours of the 17th has the following: Gen. Paledes has repeated his stragetic movement, which secured his late victory at Orleans, and has accomplished another still more important success. While holding the German forces at Toury by threatening them in front with a force equal to their own, he has swung around his left wing, moving at the same time a whole corps from Chartes along the road leading through Ablis, Orsonville, Anthon and St. Helacio to Etampes, where the corps paused. By this movement Paledes thrust himself between the Duke of Mecklenburg and Paris, and also encircling the German army on the front, right flank and rear. While this was going on, the Germans, divining their danger, commenced a retreat from Tourey northward along the road leading to Augerville, to a point twelve miles south of Etampes. Some fighting occurred, resulting in advantage to the French, who everywhere greatly outnumbered the enemy. Paladene's vanguard is now twenty-two miles due south of Versailles.

The Government of Tours has information to the effect that the advance of the army of Prince Frederick Charles has only reached Auxerre to-day, a ten day's march from Tourey.

A special dispatch from Berlin dated the 17th inst., says that a great meeting was held at Munich on the 12th. An address was voted to the King of Bavaria expressing anxiety lest Bavaria should refuse to enter the Bund on the same terms with other Southern States, and petitioning the King to avoid the danger of the isolation of Bavaria from the rest of Germany, and to this end to dissolve the Chamber which was elected under other influences and circumstances.

A Prussian Victory.

VERSAILLES, Nov. 18.

The King to-day telegraphed Queen Augusta at Berlin that the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg yesterday repulsed the enemy along the whole line near Dreaux. General Treskow at the same time captured Dreaux, many prisoners were taken and the enemy pursued in direction of Le Mans.

A special to the World dated London 18, says: Notwithstanding the momentary and somewhat forced unanimity existing in the Cabinet upon the Russian question, it is known this unanimity exists only in theory, that Russia will not proceed to enforce her claims, but that upon finding England, Austria, Italy and France resolute she will submit the matter to arbitration and not engage in war. Should these expectations prove delusive, the peace party in the Cabinet will insist on England's abstaining from all war measures. The consequence will be either the resignation of a portion of the Cabinet or a complete change of government. Reports to-night indicate the summoning of the Parliament for next week.

The Alabama Claims.

A special to the World dated London 18, says: A dispatch from Mr. Fish to Mr. Moran, concerning the Alabama claims, arrived to-day. Lord Granville being out of town, the dispatch could not be communicated to him. The contents are up to this moment unknown to the public. In circles where the fact of the arrival of the dispatch is known, great consternation and excitement prevail, as it is assumed Russia and the United States have a secret understanding.

A Battle in Progress.

A telegram from Brussels says: Yesterday a Division of Mecklenburgers advanced along the road leading from Handen to Deux and occupied the latter place, meeting slight resistance from a portion of the French army commanded by Ricreck, who were marching to join the army of the Loire from Chartres. More fighting is going on along the road from Augurville to Etamps.

What Will Bismarck Do?

Earl Russell was sent to Versailles to ask Bismarck categorically if he would acquiesce at once and unconditionally in the rejection of Russia's pretensions. The war party of the Cabinet propose, should Bismarck's answer be either in the negative or hesitating and disingenious, to inform Russia she must choose between the withdrawal of her claims and war. But the peace party of the Cabinet suppose Bismarck, without committing himself further, will propose a Congress of all the Powers to discuss and decide upon a modification of the treaty of 1856. The peace party are determined to do everything possible to induce the Government to assent to this arrangement, while the war party are equally resolved to adhere to their position. A split is imminent. It was a member of the peace party of the Government who informed your correspondent on the 16th that the administration would finally yield to Russia's demands since she asked no more than her rights.

John Bright's health is still impaired, and he will resign provided the war party of the Cabinet prevails.

Earl Russell has not yet reached Versailles, but is expected there to-night.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

A dispatch to the Manchester Guardian says the Army of the Loire yesterday was at Etampes, thirty miles from Paris.

The Bremen ship Magdalene, Captain Wencke, from New York for Bremen, was captured by a French cruiser and taken into Brest.

A Note from Earl Russell.

Earl Russell has written a pamphlet on the situation. He proposes joint armed resistance if the powers of Russia demand more than Alsace and part of Lorraine, and urges England to form a strong military reserve based on militia, and place a strong garrison at Quebec under an able commander.

Vernon Harcourt has been appointed to succeed Sir Colman Gloghlin as Judge Advocate General.

Diplomats all claim to have known that the demand of Russia would be made sooner or later. Such public opinion as there is in Russia is represented to be in favor of peace.

English officers are volunteering for services in the Turkish army. It is stated that when the Russian Minister at Vienna communicated Gortschakoff's note to Beust, he accompanied it with assurances of most peaceful intention on the part of his Government.

Earl Russell's Mission.

The Pall Mall Gazette, referring to Earl Russell's special mission to Versailles, believes the Under Secretary will return within twenty-four hours with a disavowal on the part of Prussia of sympathy with Russia's pretension, or will leave behind assurances that an unsatisfactory reply will be considered equivalent to complicity.

The Journal de St. Petersburg declares that Russia will not prove unwilling to submit her demand to a Congress, if it can be held immediately. It denies that the Russian note meant abrogation of the entire treaty with Turkey. It is threatened with internal dangers, and intervention is necessary now.

Prussia's Answer to Russell.

A Herald cable dispatch dated London, Nov. 18th, says: I have authority for stating that telegraphic dispatches are received by the government indicating the position taken by Prussia in regard to the Russian question. Prussia declares she views Russia's claims as natural, and there should be an amicable adjustment of the affair, yet she cannot see any reason for alarm on the part of of the co-signatory powers. Russia might have appealed to co-signatories for a revision of the treaty of Paris, but one of them has at present no organized Government and is therefore unable to take part in any Congress that might be proposed. It seems to be admitted by Granville that infractions of the treaty have actually occurred in the case of principalities, not by Russia's action. It is immaterial whether these infractions conduce to the interest of Russia or not, they nevertheless seem to justify her in declaring that certain other portions of the same treaty are not binding, especially when she disclaims in good faith any intention to reopen the Eastern question or commit any act hostile to other powers. This is the substance of Prussia's reply and she will hold aloof from any further action in the matter.

The News at Vienna.

A Herald special dated Vienna, Nov. 18, says: While great excitement has been created here on the Russian question, the feeling decidedly is not warlike. Beust feels sensitively the very delicate position he occupies. Prussia is so sore against him that while the recent proposition for an armistice between Prussia and France was really his own, he refrained from proposing it and pushed on England to take the initiative. His action in the present Russian complication is crippled for the same reason He fears to take any step lest he excite the enmity of Prussia, and is anxious to resign. It is the general belief that the Prussian movement is really a demonstration only intended to work in the interest of Prussia, in order that the outside world may have something else to watch besides the operations of Prussia in France. It is believed that public opinion in Europe now alone delays the bombardment of Paris. While little doubt is entertained of eventual trouble through the Eastern question, it is not believed the present embroiglio will lead to war. The note in reply to Gortshakoff's letter is conciliatory and expressed satisfaction at the peaceful declaration of Russia.

A Herald cable dated Frankfort 17, says: A heavy eastern gale has blown over the Bourse during the last few days. When the Eastern question made its appearance the people were at first afraid of the new war, but by degrees these alarms cooled when they discovered in all government quarters matters were received calmly and indifferently. The universal opinion began to prevail that England alone was in a position to take up the gauntlet, but will never do it, and after writing some acrimonious votes will allow Russia to abrogate the treaty of 1856 at her discretion. Even careful financial circles here are disposed to justify Russia in following the example of other powers in disregarding the effete provisions of the treaty ever since Napoleon proclaimed the treaty of 1815 at an end without being taken to task, and other Powers felt that such a law had been set at naught. Bismarck alone was candid enough at that time to admit openly that henceforth might would go before right. It is believed here Russia has no right to embarrass herself with new complications and that the matter will blow over peacefully.

A Herald special dated London, Nov. 18 says: A telegram dated Berlin, Nov. 17, says: If the important preparations the Germans are making are successful, Paris is expected to fall within two weeks. The Russia question is viewed here as a matter in which Prussia should decline to meddle, and the belief is general that Russia will gain her point. Prussia is apparently in harmony with Russia on the Eastern question.

Bavaria Admitted to the Confederation.

Final arrangements with Bavaria have been completed. Her military position in the German Confederation will be the same as that of Saxony. Wurtemburg will be bound to submit. The significant part is, that in the recent election, even in Democratic districts, all Democrats were defeated who had taken ground against the annexation of Alsace and Lorraine.

Watching Bourbaki.

A Herald cable special dated London, Nov. 18th, says: A special correspondent of the Herald writing from Lille, Nov. 17th, says: The stupidity of the Parisian government is making itself severely felt in this department. At the instance of Garibaldi, Testelin, Commissary General, has been given an equal command with Bourbaki, in order to watch the latter, whose fidelity to the Republic is doubted. Every movement and order of Bourbaki must be endorsed by Testelin before it can be executed. Testelin is a civilian and was a member of the Legislature of 1848. He has no military knowledge and this double command is working mischief. The friends of Bourbaki blame him for remaining in so doubtful a position. Great activity, nevertheless, has been evident in the army of the north for three days, and there is good reason to suppose that a concentration of the forces of this command is about to take place with the object of marching to the relief of Paris by moving eastward, and endeavoring to make a junction with the Army of the Loire between Fontainbleau and Cretil. The Gardes Nationales will be left to defend fortified towns. It is reported the Army of the North numbers 120,000 men, but I can only locate 95,000. Local newspapers are forbidden publishing any military information whatever.

The Orleanists.

Evidences exist everywhere that fresh hope is entertained by the people that the Orleanists will be restored. They believe Count de Paris at the head of 20,000 men could march triumphantly through this department and gain everywhere the adhesion of the people.

FLORENCE, Nov. 18.

A dispatch received by the Italian Cabinet from Ali Pasha, Turkish Minister of Foreign affairs, protesting in eloquent terms against Russia's proposed violation of her treaty obligations. Phatrades Bey is in close consultation with the foreign envoys here.

Tired of War.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

Advices from Paris, via Belgium, represent that the citizens, though they see an army coming to their relief, are tired of war, condemn the government for rejecting the armistice, and demand a convocation of the National Assembly. M. Renou, in the Journal Des Debats, writes that in spite of hostilities delegates can be got together within eight days, and the press and people are urging the authorities to take action to this end.

The Independence Belge objects to keeping in Belgium prisoners who are recovering from wounds.

LILLE, Nov. 18.

The garrison of La Tere made a brilliant sortie and releived the neighboring town of Lengenier, which was sorely pressed by the enemy. The besiegers lost several hundred killed, wounded and prisoners. The invaders continue to impress country people to work on the roads and ditches.

Dispatch From Gortschakoff.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

The following is the dispatch of Prince Gortschakoff to Baron Brunow, communicated to Brunow by Earl Granville on the 9th of November:

ZARKOE SELO, Oct. 20.

BARON: In making the communication to the principal Secretary of State of Her Britanic Majesty, presented to you by orders of His Majesty, the Emperor, you will be good enough to make its import and object clear. When at the commencement of the year 1866 a conference was talked of for the purpose of preventing war, then imminent in Germany, by the assembling of a Congress, in discussing the basis of it with Earl Russell, you were able to point out to him the compensation and the guarantees which in certain eventualities would be rendered necessary to Russia. This was recognized by Earl Russell with the utmost fairness. He did not deny that every alteration affecting the spirit of the treaty of 1856 must lead to a revision of that document. Although these eventualities have not come, Lord Granville will not deny that the treaty has suffered grave modifications in one of its essential parts, which can but impress Russia. It is not the hostile tendency toward her of which they bear the stamp, it is not the consequences that result to a great country from the establishment on her frontier of a small quasi and independent state, but it is above all the facility with which ten years after the conclusion of a solemn transaction, invested with European guarantees, can be infringed in spirit under the eyes of the very powers which ought to be its guardians. In presence of such a precedent, what value can Russia attach to the efficiency of the agreement and to the guarantee of security that she believed she had found in the principle of neutralization of the Black Sea? The equilibrium established in the East therefore is destroyed to the detriment of Russia and the resolution taken by our august master is to re-establish it. Her Britanic Majesty's Government would never consent to leave the security of its coasts to the mercy of an agreement which is no longer respected, and it is too just not to recognize that we have the same duties and the same rights. But what we especially desire to establish is that this decision makes no change in the policy His Majesty the Emperor follows in the East. You have several times already been made to enter into explanation with the Cabinet of London upon the general views the two governments hold upon this important question, and to point out a conformity of principles and of interests which we have noted with much satisfaction. We have deduced therefore that it is neither from England nor from Russia that dangers can come which could threaten the Ottoman Empire, that the two cabinets have an equal desire to maintain its existence as long as possible by the settlement and conciliation of the differences between the Porte and the Christian subjects of the Sultan, and that in case a decisive crisis should occur, notwithstanding the efforts, both are equally resolved to ask the solution above all in a general agreement of the great powers of Europe. We have not ceased to entertain these views. We believe that their complete analogy renders a serious understanding possible between Her Britanic Majesty's government and ours. We attach the utmost value to it as the best guarantee for preserving the peace and equilibrium of England from the danger which may result from the complications in the East.

By order of his Majesty, the Emperor, Your Excellency is authorized to reiterate his assurance of this to Lord Granville. We shall congratulate ourselves if the frankness of this explanation should contribute to it by removing all possibility of a misunderstanding between Her Britanic Majesty's Government and us.

I am, &c., GORTSCHAKOFF.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

A special correspondent of the Tribune telegraphs from Berlin: It is stated on Diplomatic authority from St. Petersburg, that Russia has large bodies of troops at Vistula and further south, and armed vessels on the Black Sea.

TOURS, Evening Nov. 18.

The French fleet left Yokohama, destination unknown.

China.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12.

Consul-General Seward's return was celebrated by a dinner, at which Admiral Rogers and other leading Americans were present.

The News Letter contains several editorials on the conduct of Minister Low, accusing him of gross neglect and wanton disregard of duty in the matter of the Tien-Tsin massacre.

William H. Seward will visit Japan next month.

The first interview ever given to a private individual by the Mikado, will be given to Seward, only two other persons will be present, Minister Delong and Shephard, Acting Secretary of the Legation.

New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.

A Washington Tribune special says: The President yesterday again informed prominent gentlemen that instructions had been sent to Minister Motley to turn over the United States legation in London to Mr. Morton, and return at once. He also stated that no successor to Mr. Motley had been chosen, and that he should not tender the appointment to anybody in writing. It has been noticed in the new official register just issued by the State Department that Senator Morton's name appears as minister and his appointment recorded as dating September, 1869.

Dr. Van Aeram, Commissioner of pensions, expresses the opinion that the prosecution of Roderick B. Butler, Congressman elect from Tennessee, for dishonest practices toward the Government pensioners and Pension Bureau, will not be abandoned; also, that all papers necessary are now in the hands of the Attorney General, who will instruct the District Attorney here to proceed with the prosecution as soon as Butler arrives. The Commissioner will have all his witnesses ready when called.

A Tribute to President Grant, Generals Sherman and McClellan.

Hon. J. M. Marvin and Hon. J. Blood have inaugurated a movement to raise a fund to purchase three sets of mathematical and surveying instruments and libraries for President Grant and Generals Sherman and McClellan, as a tribute of gratitude from the people of New York for services rendered in the late civil war. The cost of the instruments and libraries is estimated at $225,000; already $150,000 have been raised for McClellan, $150,000 for Sherman and $218,000 for Grant. Marvin and Blood subscribed $15,000 each for Sherman and McClellan. Among those who have responded liberally for Grant's library are G. S. Batchelor, J. A. Griswold and Horace Greeley. As soon as enough money is subscribed it will be deposited and the manufacture of the instruments commenced at Philadelphia, the presentation to take place on the fourth of next month.

Statue of Lincoln.

Miss Ream, the sculptress, who has been engaged for about three years on a $10,000 statue of Lincoln, ordered by Congress, writes from Rome that the statue is completed and will be shipped for Washington where she hopes it will arrive in time to be viewed by the members of the present Congress.

Ben. Butler in the Cabinet.

A special Washington dispatch says that Secretary Fish will soon be succeeded in the Cabinet by General Butler.

The Census.

It is understood that an effort will be made at the coming session of Congress to have a bill passed providing for certain census marshals and assistant marshals. The Census Commissioner thinks the money originally appropriated sufficient, but it was not equally divided. Marshals and assistants, in sparsely settled districts, received no more pay than those in thickly settled districts.

Another Fenian Raid.

The Sun has another sensational Fenian war rumor this morning, and says 60,000 Fenians are ready to cross the Canadian border at a moment's notice.

Mutiny of British Troops.

A special Montreal dispatch says: "A serious difficulty occurred on board the British troop-ship Orient, yesterday afternoon, at Quebec, owing to the refusal of the commanding officer of the Sixty-Ninth Regiment, to take to Bermuda, where the Regiment is ordered, the wives of the men who have married in Canada without leave. The soldiers attacked their officers and used their rifles, when the ship's crew were called to quarters to allay the mutiny. Several of the mutineers were killed and wounded."

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.

Information received shows a loss in the Alabama Legislature, owing to the bolting of the Republican tickets run in Baldwin and Madison counties. In Mobile county five bolters ran, independent of the regular nominees, and received from 200 to 300 votes, just sufficient to defeat the regular candidates, who had about 4,000 votes. Had the five regular nominees received the full party vote, the Republicans would have had a majority in joint ballot, sufficient to have elected a Senator in Congress to succeed General Warner. This bolt, it is alleged, was under the auspices of the post-master and collector of the port of Mobile. The recently appointed appraiser at Mobile led the bolting ticket. His commission will probably be revoked.

A New State.

A delegation of prominent officials from the Territory of New Mexico arrived here yesterday to urge upon Congress the passage of an act admitting New Mexico as a State into the Union. They claim that the Territory now has over 100,000 taxable inhabitants, and is fully prepared for admission. They say that within a year after the trans-continental railroad is completed, and connection made with the Kansas Pacific, the Territory will have tribled its present population. A bill for the admission of the Territory was introduced during the last session of Congress and is now with the committee on a similar bill for Colorado.

A general court-martial, consisting of Colonels Sackett and Buchanan, Drum-Majors Pratt, Pelanic, Hardin and Dana, and Captains Hawkins and Jackson, with Lieutenant Kellogg as Judge Advocate, has been appointed to meet at Detroit on the 21st inst., for the trial of Captain Fergus Walker.

Fight on a Railroad Train.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 18.

This evening two colored men somewhat intoxicated got on a down passenger train on the Indianapolis, Cincinnati & Lafayette railroad, at Greensburg, Indiana. When the Conductor, John C. Smith, came around demanding tickets, one of the men, Captain Scott, of this city, manifested a disposition to play with the Conductor and to delay matters by handing him a piece of paper. The patience of the conductor gave out, and he stopped the train and put both men off by force, though it appears the second party had not participated in the delay, and after the bell had rung agreed, according to the statement of the passengers, to pay his fare. This so enraged the second man, who was a barber from Greensburg, that he drew a revolver and discharged it twice at the conductor, one ball taking effect in the hip. Finally they were induced to come on the train, and manifested a disposition for further fight. A brakeman undertook to knock the barber down with a stone. This failed, and the latter again discharged the pistol, this time at the brakeman, though without effect. The two were finally arrested, and sent back to Greensburg. The conductor is seriously though not dangerously wounded.

Serious Accident.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 18.

The afternoon train on the Indianapolis, Cincinnati & Lafayette Railroad at Anderson's Ferry, inside the city limits, struck a wagon containing a man named Fretzer, his wife and three children, and a male relative, throwing the party out, injuring Fretzer and one child so badly that their lives are dispaired of.

A grand concert was given in Pike's Music Hall to-night, in aid of the French wounded. There was a full house, and it was a great success. Fully $100,000 was realized.

Railroad Matters.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18.

A party of railroad men representing the St. Joseph and Councl Bluff, Pennsylvania Central, Fort Wayne and Chicago, Union Pacific, Pan Handle, and Ohio and Mississippi roads, who have been in consultation here for a couple of days past, will leave to-night for Louisville and Cincinnati, Ohio. Among other things they concluded upon is to open a handsome ticket office in London and principal cities on the European continent for the purpose of supplying people returning to or visiting America with tickets over any American road.

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD, TITUSVILLE, November 18, 1870—9 P. M.

There was a fair inquiry upon the creek to-day, and the aggregate of reported transactions amounted to 16,000 bbls. The feeling remained without any change from that of the day previous, and no material change in prices was effected. Upon the Lower Creek $3.15 and $3.20 was bid, with sellers at $3.20 and $3.22½, and at $3.35 and $3.37½ for heavy oil. Upon the Upper road $3.00 was the average buying and selling price, though a few small transactions were quoted at $2.95.

The Wall street market is all in a state of feverish excitement this evening and fluctuations are more violent than for some time past. In the gold room dealing is very large and attended with much excitement, while the price reached the highest point of the day. This was caused by cable telegrams from Europe, which reported lower prices for bonds and an uneasy feeling financial circles there. On stock exchange the pressure to sell was increased, and at times stocks sold with great freedom. This finally resulted in a decline in the active shares of ⅞@2 per cent, or about 1 per cent. on an average. This day closed up with the same abatement in excitement and a steadier feeling, although Wall street speculators generally are very much mixed in regard to the future. Money easy during this afternoon at 5@6c on call, with an exception at 4c to lending Government bond dealers. Time loans at 6@7 per cent; prime discounts at 7@8½, but transactions in business paper very moderate.

Infringement Notice.—The subscriber has learned that a certain firm in Titusville, known as "Bryan, Dillingham & Co.," have commenced the manufacture of SUCKER RODS with SOCKET JOINTS. This is a DIRECT INFRINGEMENT ON HIS RIGHTS, as his claim is "connecting two sections of rod by means of wedges, wedging sockets, and double coupling bolt." He does not specify any particular shaped wedge, nor of what material it shall be made. All rods made as above described outside of his manufactory, are direct infringements.

This, therefore is to caution Oil Operators, and all others, against buying or using any rods so made, except those of his manufacture, as by so doing they will lay themselves liable, and will be dealt with according to law. WM. J. INNIS.

Petroleum versus Coal for Fuel.

Considerable controversy has periodically sprung up among engineers, chemists scientific men, and others, whenever the price of oil has reached a point low enough to justify experiments in the consumption of petroleum for fuel. From the contradictory statements, and exaggerated reports, which on these occasions ever obtain currency through the columns of the press, and a variety of other channels, and the subsequent contradiction and abandonment of nearly all of the different mechanical, chemical, and other contrivances, devices and processes, generally brought into requisition for that purpose, the public have invariably been led to the belief, that the whole theory was founded on fallacy, and that petroleum never could be brought into successful requisition as an article at all likely to take the place of coal, for generating artificial heat. In order to disabuse our minds of prejudice, and disentangle ourselves from the debris of false evidence with which the subject has been surrounded, it will become necessary to take into consideration, one or two important facts which are clearly understood by nearly all of those who have given the subject any attention.

From a variety of experiments performed by competent parties, including government engineers, of both hemispheres, it was found that one and a half to two barrels of crude petroleum were equal in effective heating power, to one ton of coal. The different gravities of oil and the different qualities of coal, and the manner in, which they were applied, of course produced different results. In every case, however, it was claimed, that the results were based upon the perfect combustion of both competitive articles.

This point has been the great stumbling block, as upon it turns the whole question of economy. The high standard of perfection which has been reached in building furnaces for the consumption of coal, and the abundance of superior mechanical skill with which we are supplied for the practical manipulation of coal fires, renders the perfect combustion of this article when proper care is exercised, almost a certainty. On the other hand the different machines for burning petroleum, although of almost infinite variety have hitherto been encumbered by complications, requiring a degree of skillful handling not to be found everywhere. Perfect combustion therefore, in this case, is not always reliable, and consequently the above figures for oil must be put at their maximum, namely, two barrels of average oil against one ton of average coal. The conclusion which we derive from this view of the question, is self evident. Whenever oil reaches a price where two barrels of that material will cost less than one ton of coal, it can safely be used as a substitute for coal; if and provided any reasonable care is exercised in the selection and management of the apparatus used for burning it. There are more than a dozen different patent mechanical contrivances which will perform this service equally well, and which are so very simple in construction that they can be run by any engineer of ordinary care and intelligence; and at the same time they can be placed in any coal or wood furnace at a trifling expenditure, or removed at pleasure.

The price of oil often reaches a figure low enough to enable most of the wells and coal consuming factories in the territory, to use it in their furnaces at a profit. If the price of oil to-day, averages $3 00 per barrel, and the price of coal $8 00 per ton there would be a saving of $2 00 on every ton of coal ordinarily used by substituting oil. And even should the price of each competitive article be equal, the welfare of the region demands, that all who depend upon it for support, should give the preference to a home product in contradistinction to that which would necessarily entail a proportionate outflow of of capital from the territory. A species of safety-valve may thus be formed, against any excess of supply, through which no inconsiderable amount of the surplus oil would escape.

Scarcely a doubt can exist in the minds of interested parties, as to the benefit from such a line of policy. The most serious question which naturally arises, is how it may be successfully carried out. We leave this for future consideration, but would meanwhile suggest that the agitation of this subject, and the practical carrying out of its principles, by all who at present can see their way clearly, would render its ultimate and general adoption simply a matter of time.

In this connection, we are credibly informed, that a large foundry for the manufacture of hollow ware in Philadelphia, has been successfully and economically run for the past seven months by one of these oil burners; and the firm speak very highly of its practical utility, and the many advantages they derive from its use. It is improbable that the establishment, which is of thirty years standing, would adopt this principle unless they could do so economically. The following are the items of machinery which they are now running at their works, as furnished in detail by themselves:

"We regard this oil machine as entirely safe, remarkably easy to control, not liable to get out of order, and sure in its operations. It is difficult to conceive of more perfect or beautiful combustion, while smoke, ashes and cinders are entirely done away with. It produces a much more regular and uniform heat than can be produced by burning coal.

Our boiler is sixty inches in diameter and twenty-eight feet long, with return flue twelve inches in diameter, and is called by boiler-makers sixty horse power. We drive with it three engines. The largest has attached to three heavy grindstones, sixty-inches in diameter and twelve inches broad on the face, for grinding sad-irons, and two small grindstones for finishing castings and grinding tools; two shafts running four emery wheels; nine mills for cleaning castings; four mills for grinding enamel (which require a large power to run them); two stamps; one rotary shears; one lathe; one fan for making covers, one bolt-cutting machine, and one of McKenzie's blowers, making blast for two McKenzie cupolas, one melting fire, and the other three tons of iron per hour. The second engine drives eight round and two oval lathes, for turning hollow-ware, one fan, and one grindstone. The third engine drives two small lathes, and one grindstone for pattern shop. Besides, with the same boiler, we heat by steam in winter the grinding and polishing shops, the cleaning shop, pattern shop, and office."

No information has yet been received of the young girl who so mysteriously disappeared a few days since, and her friends manifest great anxiety for her welfare.

IT would be interesting to ascertain what has become of that old farmer who had his boots blacked simultaneously in New York and Titusville.

SHERRY'S Troupe are performing in Syracuse. They will have the opening week in Parshall's Opera House, in Titusville.

The Model Wife.

The initial lecture of the winter course under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., was delivered last evening by Rev. Dr. A. A. Willits, of Philadelphia, and notwithstanding the unfavorable condition of the weather, attracted a very large audience. His subject was "The Model Wife." He began by saying that the modesty and unobstrusiveness of woman often causes her potent influence over the character and destiny of mankind to be overlooked. It is the hidden moisture that refreshes the flowers; the noisy cataract is not so useful as the gentle rill that marks its course by the living verdure and beautiful flowers. The mightiest forces of nature move without friction. The loud voiced champion, the noisy assembly, the hero, the millionaire, the dashing king of the money changers, secure admiration, but the world is apt to forget the far-reaching influence of a good wife, a good mother, a good woman. It is the light of a happy home which is the guiding star of man's good destiny. It is woman's sweet spirit which is the guardian angel of the home altar. In these noisy days it is well to turn aside to quiet pictures of domestic life, that we may admire and imitate the portraiture of a model wife and mother. The closing chapter of the book of Proverbs contains the most complete and beautiful portraiture of a model wife to be found in the sacred scriptures, and it was the work of a female artist. It presents a picture of a tasteful and well ordered house three thousand years ago. Time has changed the customs, but the features of the good woman's character are the same now as then. It seems to have been an exceptional portrait even in those days, but still it was no fancy sketch. The speaker here quoted the beautiful passages referred to in Proverbs, and observed that neither art nor poetry has excelled this delineation, and proceeded to analyze some of the salient features of the matchless sketch.

First, the wife's industry. Burton called idleness the cushion upon which the devil chiefly reposes, and the nurse of naughtiness. Out of the twenty-two verses in the sketch eleven set forth forms of industry. She not only superintends her work, but she sets an example with her own hands. To the model wife work is not vulgar and degrading. The perfection of womanly beauty is not an ethereal body, white hands and pale face, but loins girded with strength, not with whalebone. Our modern notions and habits of domestic industry deserve the severest reprehension. In ancient times the bride went to her new home accompanied with maidens carrying the distaff and spindle, and gay-colored wool, as tokens and implements of household diligence. It was the pride of Augustus Cæsar that his imperial robes were wrought in his own household. If our fair sisters would escape blue devils and black, and ennui, let them cultivate motherly industry. Could he sing, his song would be to modern belles: "Buy a broom," and use it till the flowers in the carpet brighten beneath your feet and rival the roses on your cheeks. Make beds and bread against the time of knead, and thus avoid the lilies and languors of idleness.

The second point of attraction in the model wife was neatness and taste. This wife was neither a shrew nor a drudge. Her house was a picture of order and neatness. Her husband was "known in the gates" by the tidiness of his apparel and cleanliness of his linen. "For good wives were made," the saying declares, "to smooth our linen and cares." A good wife makes her husband and children look tidy, her home attractive; her person receives a due share of attention, for after preparing double garments for the winter use of her household, she "made beautiful vestments for herself; her clothing was fine linen and purple." The matter of personal appearance and dress and manners, and household appointments are by no means trivial. He did not advocate extravagancies in fashion; did not uphold daughters of Hem and Sham; but—

> "Women were made to give our eyes delight;
> A female sloven is an odious sight."

The third trait in the model wife's character is her prudent and thrifty management. It was a learned judge who inscribed upon his wife's tomb, "She was an excellent woman and a good cook. Most men like in a wife—

> "A creature not too bright and good
> For human nature's daily food."

Even good men have their weaknesses. The deacon who attended a clerical convocation, when asked what kind of a time he had, replied, "Glorious! glorious! Such puddings!"

To get along with the short comings of servants, and the cares and worries of housekeeping, the quality which is most necessary, may be given the name of Gumption. It is the tact faculty—the offspring of common sense and mother wit. Great is gumption! A woman may speak all the languages, and understand all the ologies—if she has not gumption, it profiteth her nothing.

The model wife was a good manager and combined tact with thrift. She not only got an early start, but an orderly one, and planned the work for the day. "She giveth meat to the household, and her orders to her maidens." One expression in the description, contains a volume of praise. "The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, so that her shall have no need of spoil" It is to a good wife that a man frequently owes a fortune repaired and a character saved. He can never fail with such a wife, "who doeth him good and not evil all the days of his life." A husband need not annoy his wife with the details of commercial transactions, but they should both feel an identity of interests in fortune. She should share his honors as well as sympathize in his misfortunes. Some men are so wise in their own conceit that they will not consult their wives about anything, and the speaker illustrated it by an amusing anecdote in point.

Another excellency in a model wife's character is her sympathy and benevolence: "She openeth her hand to the poor; yea, she stretcheth forth her hands to the needy." She stretches her hands and does not wait for the afflicted to come to her for assistance. What a discount would our admiration suffer had the traits we have noticed, the industry, the taste, the prudence and the economy of this wife, been exhibited in the iron frame of selfishness, instead of the gold setting of charity. If she had been so swallowed up in her own well provided family as to care nothing for the sick and suffering around her; if with every gift of fortune and grace of person, she had no sympathy for the suffering. Extravagance petrifies the heart, and ambition for display leaves little means and space for thought or care for the destitute. The highest sphere in which woman can move is an angel of mercy. Here she need fear no competition. 'Twas not woman who slept during the agonies of Gethsemane. It was woman who emptied her purse to buy spices to embalm the body of her Lord. The lecturer here quoted the lines of Coleridge to Geneviéve, concluding as follows:

> "When sinking low, the sufferer wan
> Beholds no hand stretched out to save,
> Fair as the bosom of the swan
> That rises graceful o'er the wave,
> I've seen your breast with pity heave,
> And therefore love you, sweet Geneveieve."

Still another admirable feature in the model wife was her wisdom and kindness, her management of tongue and temper. The Graces were females, and so were the Furies, and the poet says:

> "I've seen your stormy seas
> And stormy women,
> And pity husbands
> More than I do seamen."

We were born with two eyes and one tongue, and should see twice as much as we say. "She opened her mouth with wisdom, and on her tongue is the law of kindness."

The speaker then in contrast photographed the household scold humorously and severely, with a quotation in point. Nothing is more beautiful than the speech and life of a woman uniformly reasonable and kind. The summary of her virtues was now complete; the field for their exercise was home, the domestic circle. The world is always as are its homes. Here was a source of central influence, for here human character was shaped, moulded and stamped just as she pleased. In point of honor, power and influence, woman occupies no second place, but the first. She is the educator of the race. Man is too hurried, too much absorbed, too tyrannical, too impatient for this grand office of early education, and so infinite Goodness and Wisdom committed it to woman. The fruits of her influence are, "her children rise up and call her blessed." "Her husband also, he praiseth her." Behind nearly all the great and good men in history, you will see the shadow of a good mother, to whose christian nurture they owed all their excellence. The speaker here gave several historical examples, including the Adams and Beecher families, and paid an exalted tribute to the mother of Washington. Such was a sketch of woman's character, sphere and exalted influence. Much has been said on woman's rights—some things wise, and some things otherwise. Christian civilization had ameliorated her condition in many ways in the past and would continue to do so in the future God speed all such reforms. Still every attempt to transfer her to a masculine sphere of action is sure to lead her astray. The glory of her character consisted in her feminine qualities, her purity, her imagination, her taste, her refinements, her affections. In these qualities she was unrivalled; for these there is a sphere peculiarly her own. The speaker concluded with an apt quotation from Tennyson, recited in his forcible and appreciative manner. The lecture was eminently practical in its tone and bearing, and couched in felicity of language and enlivened by aptness of quotation and racy anecdote, which kept the audience in constant good humor with the speaker, while he pressed home salutary domestic lessons, and his conservative views of the marriage relation, and the peculiar offices of "The Model Wife."

THE TIDIOUTE RAILROAD.—Concerning the prospective connection of Titusville with Tidioute by railroad, the Warren Mail states that the N. Y. Central Railroad is negotiating for the purchase or control of the Dunkirk and Warren Railroad, with a fair prospect of success. In this event it will become an important thoroughfare, giving the Central access to the oil regions directly and adding largely to its already heavy carrying trade. Shippers of oil would of course be benefitted by this competition for freight and the public generally who consume oil and coal would very likely share in its advantages. In connection with this is a movement among capitalists for the construction of a railroad from Tidioute to Titusville by way of South West, resulting probably in the construction of a connecting line between Warren and Tidioute on the other side of the river, for which there is already a good charter.

MR. JOSEPH BARNSDALL calls our attention to the fact that the printed contracts with parties for the use of Corinthian Hall do not stipulate that the proprietor shall have the right to sell tickets of admission at the door at a fair remuneration for his services, except in cases where the rent has not been paid in advance, and the showman is considered irresponsible. This rule is regarded as essential to the proprietor's security against fraud, and proper enough. We make the explanation in justice to Mr. Barnsdall personally, who we understand has nothing to do with the other points of the controversy.

SNOW fell yesterday afternoon for about an hour, and the large white flakes as they descended, and mantled the earth with an immaculate robe, for a time at least, magically dispelled the gloom of our mud environed precincts. One was almost tempted to believe that a hard impenetrable freezing crust formed the substrata. This, however, was not of long duration, as before sunset mud patches again reappeared, in long dark streaks over the highways of traffic, and the sidewalks, and especially the crossings, were rendered even more miserably sloppy and uncomfortable than before.

IT has been ascertained that the explosion of Nitro-Glycerine at Fairfield was probably caused by an earthquake, or at least that an earthquake actually did occur and the explosion followed instanter. We have secured one interesting communication on the subject which will appear on Monday.

NASBY.—The Erie Observer says "Nasby was not appreciated in Titusville—his lecture did not pay expenses." On the contrary his lecture paid him one hundred and ten dollars above expenses. If he does as well elsewhere, he will accumulate a snug fortune before the season is ended.

MONTGOMERY, the man who recently murdered his wife in Rochester, N. Y., was last year employed as an engineer at Shamburg.

THERE will be a special meeting of the members of Col. Drake Company No. 1, this evening at 7½ o'clock. By order of
J. KELLOGG, Foreman.

CIRCULATION OF NEWSPAPERS.—The Erie Daily Republican states that it has as many readers as any other Daily in this portion of the State. Thereupon the Dispatch calls attention to the figures which the proprietors of each journal gave the census taker, to wit:

Number of papers annually issued by the Dispatch Company....................497,000
Number of papers annually issued by the Republican Company....................233,450

This shows a good, healthy circulation for both newspapers, but inasmuch as the Republican has challenged a comparison with other newspapers, we must be permitted to say that, according to the above showing, the circulation of the Titusville HERALD is larger than that of both the Dispatch and Republican combined.

—A new school house is to be erected at Kane city, for the urchins. The boys of a larger growth have a weekly debating club there.

For the Titusville Herald.

FADING FLOWERS AND FALLING SEEDS.

BY MAYDEW.

Joys the sweetest are most fleeting,
Shade with sunshine ever meeting,
And on every blissful moment
Trembles oft a dewy tear;
One by one adown Time's river
Float our joys away forever,
And the sunshine in the distance
Makes the shadows seem more drear.

Ah! but list! my heart is singing:
Time the reaper now is bringing
Seeds of hope to sow with promise
Where he plucked the flowers away;
Sweet 'twill be to watch them springing,
Mystic perfume with them bringing,
While the bee with drowsy humming
Seeks them all the live-long day.

Birds will flit with wanton warble
Through the arch, whose snowy marble,
Once so cold and bare, is gleaming
Out from many a clasping vine;
And the jessamine—woodbine meeting—
Soft will yield a tender greeting,
And with perfume sweetly blending
Close around it will entwine.

Mourn not, then, that Time is stealing
Joys away; 'tis but revealing
Those with richer tint and texture
Which he holds for you in store.
Every joy he reaps—in reaping
Falls a seed—the promise keeping
That a germ with purer incense
Is expanding more and more

Edgewood, Nov. 9th, 1870.

Updike's Sauce Piquant.

Updike's Sauce Piquant is now universally acknowledged to be without a superior in the country as a condiment for meats, fish, poultry, and game. For the flavoring of dishes, it probably will suit a greater diversity of tastes than any other relish in the market. So far from injuring the tone of the stomach, as some of the older French and English sauces, it is said to possess undeniable medicinal properties, and to be an excellent remedy for flatulent ailments, sluggish circulation of the blood, as well as a stimulant to a jaded appetite. Such connoisseurs in such matters as Stetson, of the Astor House, N. Y., and Leland of the Delavan, Albany, bear their testimony that it is the best sauce in the market, and there is hardly a first-class hotel and restaurant that does not have it on its table It has a great popularity among the families that have been accustomed to use it for many years, as imparting an agreeable relish to salads, chowder, soups, steaks, chops, etc. It is now for the first time put on sale in Titusville, at many of our principal stores. Call for "Updike's Piquant Sauce."

TIDIOUTE.—Some cross-eyed correspondent of the Jamestown Democrat, has been writing up "Tidioute as a mud hole." It is fortunate for him that his identity is not revealed, for the Journal would ride him rough shod, and the exasperated citizens of that bustling borough would "interview" him without judge or jury. This is his description of the imperial city of Dennis Run:

I will venture to assert without fear of successful contradiction, as debating school orators are wont to say, that there isn't a town in the United States, or any other States, of ten years' growth, that can hold a candle to Tidioute for disgusting filthiness of streets, walks, by-ways, and vacant lots. Piles of manure line the principal street from end to end, lying in front of hitching posts where deposited. Substantial bisons of tenderloid and spare-rib grunt in the gutters and promenade the walks; no spot outside the house is sacred from their investigations. Untranslated Bolognas howl and squall on corners and in back areas, plethoric ducks and stately geese sail over sylvan ponds composed of refuse oil, oyster cans, old shoes add gutter wash. The pedestrian goes up steps and down steps, and sometimes down without the aid of steps, especially if he has imbibed a little of the Tidioute Nitro-glycerine—a little I say, for if he imbibes much he will go down to the bone-yard right away—that's all.

The town is like the Indian's farm, "all no wind, up hill and stony as hades," or Connecticut. The inhabitants say it is about one mile long by a quarter narrow. It has one principal street which follows the river's sinuous winding. It has four or five quiet good hotels, but as your correspondent hasn't fed free at any of them he isn't to say which is best.

It has some quite tasty residences, among which is the mansion of the affable and courteous banker and oil refiner, Mr. Grandin, brother of your Jamestown wollen manufacturer, Mr. D. H. Grandin. New buildings are constantly going up, and Tidioute, in spite of its uncleanly streets, evinces a spirit of go-a-headiveness and enterprise that many older and statelier towns might do well to imitate.

On the opposite side of the river in the Economite property. Oil wells, boarding-house, shops, school house and church, constitutes quite a village of itself. Dennis Run is tributary to the Allegheny at this point, and is the nearest oil territory to the village. Fagundus City and Hickory are the developed points a few miles down the river. There are three churches and a very good Union School building. Considerable depositaries of coal exist across the river, but not in paying quantities.

TEMPERANCE INDISPENSABLE IN AN ENGINEER.—The annual address before the National Convention of Locomotive Engineers was delivered by Chief Engineer Charles Wilson, which is spoken of as an able effort. This Association is one of the highest character, and has already expended $120,000 upon charitable objects. The general character of the Association may be judged by the closing paragraphs of the annual address.

"Temperance is the crowning virtue of all morals, but to an engineer it is a necessity, and no man ought to be allowed to have charge of a locomotive engine that habitually uses intoxicating drinks. Leaving out of the question everything except the fitness and reliability of the man to run an engine, then the answer is the same in regard to the absolute necessity of his being strictly a temperance man. This temperance question is of the utmost importance to our organization, as the bad example of one man may ruin many others; and the intemperate habits of one of the members casts a stigma upon all his associetes. There is nothing that will injure the reputation of an engineer in the minds of all classes of our citizens so quick as intemperance; and the same remark is true in regard to the good opinion of the railroad officials.

"A railroad official standing at the depot, waiting for the train, seeing the engineer that is to run the train he is going on, take a glass of whisky in some saloon near by, will keep that fact vividly in his mind until he arrives at his journey's end The official may be a drinking man himself, but he has sense enough to know that a drunken man has no busines with a locomotive; and drinking men well know the liability of a man that uses intoxicating liquors to drink to excess. All feel safe, in their own minds, but none more so than the drunkard. I desire to have all my brothers consider this question as affecting them as engineers. When we picture the disgrace and distress brought upon the drunkard's family, and in the end his utter ruin and death, we only argue the question as applicable to all classes and conditions of life: and it is not necessary for me to occupy your time in referring you to cases of disgrace and final ruin on account of intemperance. Alas, you are too familiar with such scenes. Would to God that they were not so frequent."

THE editor of the Oil City Register thus explains why he has concluded not to publish a daily in the oil regions: "We have noticed that nearly all persons who have acquired wealth hastily and without effort, lose it in like manner. We don't want to get rich suddenly, but will content to plod along with our neighbors, and grow wealthy by gradual accumulation. We are, therefore, impelled to decline the prospect of becoming a millionaire in a few short months by the publication of a daily newspaper in the oil region, as well as the early nomination and election to Congress that it would secure. May kind Providence preserve us from all such corrupting influences."

PLANT STREET TREES.

I have a large and well-selected stock of MAPLE and ELM trees, and am now prepared to set out trees in the city of Titusville. I will replace all trees that die. Out of 400 set out last spring only six per cent died. I have 50 trees, 6 to 8 inches in diameter, which I shall "ball" this winter, for spring planting. Ten or fifteen years is gained in this way. Send orders to me by mail or leave them at Bullanti's store.

CLOTHING--DRY GOODS.

A GREAT THING

FOR EVERYBODY TO KNOW IN THE

City of Titusville.

There are a great many men who order their Clothes

FROM OTHER CITIES!

cause they think they get them Cheaper, but they are mistaken.

COME ONE, COME ALL! TO MY

ESTABLISHMENT,

And Look at my Goods and Examine my Work, and then you will see that you get

Better Work

and for the Same Price that you pay when you order from other Cities,

IF NOT CHEAPER!

It is true, I must pay Higher Wages for Tailors than Merchant Tailors in other Cities pay, but I keep only

First-Class Workmen;

But then, again, I save the High Wages, which a Cutter gets, as I Cut all Garments myself, therefore I can produce the Best and Neatest Styles

of Garments, and as Cheap as any other Merchant Tailor in or out of Titusville. So don't send your Orders and Money out of your own Town, where you will be well Fitted with Good Goods, made up in the Style.

REAL ESTATE.

STRATTON & KIP,

OIL AND LAND BROKERS,

Franklin, Pa.

The attention of oil operators and the public generally is called to the following list of CHOICE OIL TERRITORY, LEASES and INTERESTS situated in the LUBRICATING DISTRICT of Franklin and vicinity.

The situation of the following land can be seen by referring to Beers' Atlas Map of the Oil Regions.

No. 19--The Keely Farm.

One hundred and seven acres, situated on Patchel run, about four miles from Franklin, will be sold at a low-down price, to close up company accounts.

4. The Undivided One-Half, in ec, of Eighteen Acres,

Situated in the rear of the Point at Franklin producing wells adjoining; wells going down all around, depth required about 400 feet.

8. 50 Acres in Jackson Township.

Good Farming land, and near producing wells. Will be sold in lots to suit purchasers

13. The Twomey Farm,

Fifty acres on a branch of Two mile Run, adjoining the KUNKLE WELLS. Good timber, and is as good oil land as there is in Sugar Creek township. Will be sold at a bargain if applied for soon.

14. The W. W. Huff Farm.

106 acres, opposite Reno, in a direct line between Shaffer Run and Foster. The same line extended strikes the Angell well and Scrubgrass. Its location makes it a very desirable point for operators. It will be sold at reasonable rates

No. 15--The Espy Farm--55 Acres,

Situated on Patchell run, about four miles from Franklin. PRICE $4,500.

No. 16--The Stockin Farm--109 Acres.

Near the Shippen Wells. Good oil territory, and will be SOLD AT A LOW FIGURE.

17.--The Collum Farm.

A tract of land in fee, containing 225 acres, 75 of which are bottom lands, situated in Oakland and Plum townships, on Sugar Creek, 4½ miles from from Oil Creek, east and west branches of Sugar Creek running through it. Recent developments make this property admirably adapted to oil purposes. Will be sold very low for cash.

18.--The Worden Farm.

122 acres situated on Sugar Creek, 1½ miles from the mouth, house and barn on the premises, it adjoins producing territory, and will be sold cheaper than any land on the Creek, if applied for soon. Operators will find it to their interest to examine this land before purchasing elsewhere.
